

BioHitech America Expands Its Global Footprint By Offering the Best Food Waste Solution

The Great Wolf Resort implements a zero waste strategy and installs the Eco-Safe Digester, as does Costco Canada, reaffirming their commitment to environmental stewardship.

Chestnut Ridge, N.Y. (PRWEB) February 05, 2013

BioHitech America, located in Chestnut Ridge, New York, continues to expand the global footprint of its Eco-Safe Digester as a solution for discarded food waste in Canada. With customers in 33 of the 50 United States, the Middle East and Caribbean, its most recent installation adds the Canadian market to that list.

"The acceptance of this technology and our product continues to show strong growth, increasing the emphasis on food waste diversion," Frank Celli, CEO BioHitech America. BioHitech America has always had a clear vision about the future of the waste industry and with the newest installation into the Canadian market place, continues to lead this effort with the Eco-Safe Digester, an organic decomposition machine designed to fit seamlessly into any food service, hospitality, healthcare, government, conference center, or education application.

The waste industry is changing. Technology, like the Eco-Safe Digester is being installed to get food waste out of landfills. The green food waste solution ensures the proper disposal of food waste so that it does not have the ability to leach in the landfill, contaminating the soil and groundwater surrounding it. It also stops the shrinking landfill space problem plaguing Canada and the United States. Food waste in landfills impacts the economy and the environment.

Along with the environmental benefits, customers like The Great Wolf Lodge located in Ontario Canada, and Costco located in British Columbia, Canada, will enjoy cost saving benefits, as well as improved work flow, safety and sanitation conditions. There is also no longer the need to store food waste for composting pick-up. Canada is hoping to put their efforts in the best food waste solution, the Eco-Safe Digester.

BioHitech America, LLC is an industry leader in comprehensive organic waste disposal. As a privately held small business, they deliver superior service and excellent products without compromising the integrity of the environment. They have the exclusive rights to market The Eco-Safe Digester proprietary organic waste decomposition solution globally. For more information, visit <http://www.biohitech.com>.